Lectures and Seminars in English

Winter Semester 2011/2012
Dear Students,

In the following you can find our lectures offered in English language at the Faculty of Educational Science in winter semester 2011/2012. Many of the lectures are offered by international Guest Professors. So you will have the possibility to study in an international environment in Essen.

As the number of our Incoming Students is still small, you will study in these courses with German students. So you can get in contact with the other Incoming Students as well as with German students. You are welcome to visit also our courses in German. The overview of all courses in winter semester 2011/2012 of the Faculty of Education Sciences is provided in our Database LSF:

https://lsf.uni-due.de/lsf/rds?state=wtree&search=1&trex=step&root120112=80936|80147|84511|81958|84623&P.vx=kurz

The Faculty of Educational Sciences has moved at the beginning of October 2009 into the “Weststadttürme” at Berliner Platz. This building is a 10 minutes walk from Campus Essen. Several lectures in the Master-Courses are provided in this building. You will get further information on the concrete lecture rooms in the commentaries below.

European Strategies of Lifelong Learning (2 ECTS) (online seminar)

Time/Place:
Online Seminar 10.10.2011-30.01.2012
Face-to-face meeting: 14.01.2012, 10.00-16.00, Weststadttuerme, Room WST C.02.11

Internal Allocation: MA: EAE Modul 2b

Content
The online seminar on European Teaching Theories deals with theoretical approaches on teaching and its contribution to facilitate learning on adulthood. This seminar is aimed at giving the background of the discussions and understandings regarding the building up of the didactic interaction with adults. It is the starting point and the basis for a professional adult educator that is planning and running a didactic interaction with adults, with the aim of facilitating the adults’ learning. At the end of the seminar, the students will be able to:

- explain different terms related to teaching and learning like didactics, teaching culture etc. and know examples about the different use of those terms in different European countries,
- distinguish different approaches and streams in teaching theory,
- describe different theories of teaching and their relationship to concepts of learning
- explain the basic relations between the different theoretical approaches to learning and teaching,
- analyze the relationship between learning and teaching with respect to different learning and teaching theories, - plan and analyze adult education situations from a theoretical point of view.
- identify different approaches to teaching regarding sequence, attitudes towards the learner, context and technical facilities; students will understand how teaching theories and theoretical concepts might affect practical decisions.

Furthermore, the students will be able to explain their didactic approach based on different teaching theories. S/he will be aware that teaching is more than a skill, which requires permanent reflexion and reviewing while managing learning.

The online course will be for about four weeks. During the course, the students are strongly recommended to make extensive use of the online forum. They will have to produce three postings of suitable quality throughout the module, and also to participate in all of the discussion tasks, sharing their findings and experiences.

Aims and objectives of the course

The seminar on European Teaching Theories deals with theoretical approaches on teaching and learning – historical and contemporary ones. This seminar focuses on the European roots of adult teaching and philosophical approaches to it, including adult education theories as the background. The anthropological approaches to the didactic interaction with adults will be examined, as well as the didactical consequences of these approaches. Except historical, philosophical and anthropological basis of teaching theories, psychological approaches will be highlighted as the main starting point to the understanding of the learning process of adults and implications for the teaching. Unlike traditional didactic theories, the seminar will address the post-modern theories and the theoretical background of modern methods of planning and running a didactic interaction with adults, with the aim of facilitating the adults’ learning. The practical experiences and situations will be used, analysed and reflected from the theoretical points of view.

At the end of the seminar, the students will be able to:

- understand the historical roots of different approaches to teaching theories
- explain different terms related to teaching and learning of adults
- distinguish different approaches and streams in teaching theory,
- describe the main philosophical and psychological approaches to learning and teaching of adults
- describe different theories of teaching and their relationship to concepts of learning
- understand, plan and analyze adult education situations from a theoretical point of view.

Aims and objectives of the course

The overall aim of the course is to examine the role and status of adult learning in the context of contemporary European society, including European and national educational policies, business based approaches to the adult learning, and the impact of globalisation to it. The seminar will examine adult education as the “good” on a few historical examples and contemporary treatment of education in the policy development and on the free market. The relationship between education as the “good” and “value” will be examined. On the basis of European strategic documents, papers, resolution and communication, the role and “image” of adult learning will be examined, on the broad spectrum from “the highest value that should be available to everyone” till “one of the good that should be left to the free market”. The main issues in this context are “adult education and learning for the free market and employment” and “adult education and learning for the social inclusion”. The impact of globalisation and global crises to this approach will be analysed, especially on the idea of adult education as human right. Some international issue around adult learning and consumption of educational goods will be discussed, in the context of UNESCO and activities of other international “players.” Some aspects of the regional differences in the role and status of adult learning will be analysed, especially in the countries in transition, such as South-Eastern European countries. Further on, the focus will be on the different strategies used to engage adults in learning, and how they shape demand and supply in the modern European societies; it will look at groups under-represented in adult learning, the barriers to their participation, and how these can be overcome.

After the course, students will be able to:

- to define the central terms
- to develop the critical attitude and way of thinking towards different approaches, especially one-sided approaches to adult learning
- to understand and interpret the European policy of adult learning and education
- to recognize the regional differences in valuing adult education and learning
- to identify “good” and “value” approach to education in different contexts
- to identify main issues in the international debate about the value of adult learning
- to review and analyse strategies used to overcome barriers to learning

Transnational Project (10ECTS) (online)

Time/Place:
The online dates will be announced soon.

Internal Allocation: MA: EAE Modul 9

Aims and objectives of the course

During the Transnational Project students are meant to collaborate in a multicultural context on the basis of practical work. The Transnational Project can be carried out either in form of a group project of students in the European Master in Adult Education or in the form of an internship in an adult education institution that is working internationally or is situated abroad.

The Transnational Project will be supported online on the moodle platform. There will also be preparation and evaluation meetings on campus.

The moodle course supports the Transnational Project work with:

- provision of information about project management
- provision of information on international communication
- support in the organisation of the project
- support during the project process
- support of the communication between fellow students

Small tasks will be included in the moodle course. Each Transnational Project has to be presented in a final report.

Remarks:

Please register on moodle until the beginning of winter-semester 11.10.2010 at the latest!

Please feel free to use the possibility for individual support within my consultation hour.

First preparatory meeting, Thursday, 8.7.2010, 14-16:00 there we will agree on the following appointments.
