

Career Talk CRC 1242: From Physics to Advisory

Tuesday, April 25

room: MG 272

start: 2:00 p.m.

This talk presents technology consulting with some typical aspects of a possible career path and why physicists are most wanted for it.

Speaker: Benjamin Eickmeier

After finishing his master's degree in physics at the University of Hamburg, Benjamin Eickmeier started working in IT consulting and advises banks on IT transformation issues. As a manager at PwC, he works in the area of financial services technology consulting, primarily in enterprise and solution architecture.