

Homebound: Diaspora Spaces and Selves in Greek American Return Narratives
Evangelia Kindinger
Heidelberg: Universitätsverlag Winter, 2015

Contents

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

THE PROMISE OF RETURN

Introduction
The Politics of Returning Home
The Contours of Greek America
Greek American Literature

1 THE HOME(S) OF DIASPORA

Introduction
The Impossibility of Home
Diaspora and the Homeland
Diaspora and Return
Returning to the Homeland: Conclusion

2 RETURN NARRATIVES: LATE ARRIVALS AND EARLY DEPARTURES

Introduction
Travel Writing: Approaching a Genre
Return Narratives: Working Definition
Choosing Position(s) in Greece by Prejudice
Athens
Hora
On the Road
The Fluctuation of Returnee Positions: Conclusion

3 WOMEN'S DIASPORA SPACES

Introduction
Feminizing Diaspora
Greek America's Women
Feminizing Return
Women's Diaspora in The Priest Fainted
"Start with imam": A Culinary Diaspora
Women's Diaspora in North of Ithaka
Diaspora and Home-Ownership
Women's Diaspora Spaces: Conclusion

4 REGIONAL RETURN NARRATIVES

Introduction

Popular (Auto)ethnography and Regional Writing

The Bellstone: Tales of Masculinity

The Returnee Self in The Bellstone

The Feasts of Memory: Tales of Family

The Returnee Self in The Feasts of Memory

Regional Story Telling in the Diaspora: Conclusion

5 RETURNING TO THE CITY: ATHENS

Introduction

Writing Athens: Entering and Leaving

Immigrants and Athenians in the City

Nostalgia in the City

Writing Athens: Entering and Dwelling

The Politics of Belonging: Xeni and Dyki Mas

Writing Counter-Spaces: Athens and the U.S.

The City as Diaspora Space: Conclusion

RETURN REVISITED: A CONCLUSION

Off the Center

The Meaning of Greece

Possibilities and Outlook

BIBLIOGRAPHY